Communication Today is a scientific journal from the mass media and marketing communication field. The journal contains professional scientific reflections on the media, media competence; it also offers academic discourses on the limits of reality, media thinking, new media, marketing and media relations, new trends in marketing including their types and specifics, psychology and sociology of marketing communication, as well as new knowledge about the structure of media contents, marketing strategies and communication sciences. The professional public is offered an interdisciplinary, focused, targeted discussion in these pages.

Communication Today is a reviewed periodical published twice a year. It focuses on theoretical studies, theoretical and empirical studies, research results and their implementation into practice, as well as professional publication reviews.

The members of the journal’s Editorial Board are members of the European Communication Research and Education Association (ECREA). Communication Today is indexed in citation databases as follows: Cabell’s Directories, CEJSH, EBSCO, CEEOL, ProQuest, Ulrich’s Periodicals Directory, Index Copernicus, ERIH PLUS, SCOPUS and Emerging Sources Citation Index (ESCI) – Web of Science Core Collection.
Dear Readers,

In this introduction to this year's second issue, you will not be addressed by an expert on media, communication, or marketing, but by a culturologist. Interestingly, perhaps, this is not at all surprising. The issues of mass media, media, or marketing communication are a natural part of contemporary society and culture. Present-day culturologists, or any other scholars who also need to study culture for their research, increasingly cannot do without these topics.

Culture, whether as a complex mode of existence of the human community (in the anthropological understanding) or as a man-made 'that' which is beautiful, valuable, good, and life-facilitating (in the axiological understanding), exists in the process of communication between individuals and groups. Contemporary, modern, increasingly globalised culture exists through contemporary, modern, and increasingly globalised communication tools. Those who want to understand contemporary culture must deal with communication as a tool for creating, transmitting, sharing, and consuming it.

My dear colleagues, the issue you are holding 'in your hands' right now is exceptional for two reasons. The first is its sophisticated variety. Interdisciplinarity, as the hallmark and DNA of Communication Today, is achieved and visible in the current issue through a unique mosaic of studies from multiple disciplines, including topics that the journal has long followed. This is extremely important and beneficial for scholars within the interdisciplinary discourse. The second is the timeliness and freshness of the topics addressed by the present studies. They respond to ongoing information warfare and hybrid threats, geopolitical processes, contemporary developments and the impact of mass media and media, pandemic and post-pandemic phenomena, or the gender agenda, mostly through specific cases and the authors' own research.

This issue undoubtedly contributes to the knowledge of the functioning of contemporary human society and culture. Actually, who would say that (even) this issue is appropriate and interesting for (even) one culturologist?

Prof. PhDr. Ladislav Lenovský, PhD.
Vice-Rector of the University of St. Cyril and Methodius in Trnava

THEORETICAL STUDIES

New Legal Regulation of Publications in Slovak Media Environment, Ján Vráňovský – Martin Solík – Olga Dubravská ................................................... 4
The Model of Value of a Media Product, Slávka Pitoňáková ............................................. 16
Methodological Principles of Media Technologies’ Influence on Human Being and Geopolitical Processes, Andrei Kutyk .................................................. 42

RESEARCH STUDIES

Status of Senior Media Literacy in the Slovak Republic, Monika Prostainulková Hosová .................................................. 52
Digital Resilience in the Area of Hybrid Threats: Perception of Concepts Associated with the Ukrainian Military Conflict by Generation Z in Slovakia, Lucia Spálová – Petra Mikušová – Peter Kryšťák .................................................. 76

Attractive Human Face as a Communication Tool: Age and Gender Specifics of the Attractiveness of Sexually Dimorphic Features in Facial Composites, Slávka Démuthová – Alexandra Hadžíková ……… 90
Polarisation and Disinformation Content from Spanish Political Actors on Twitter/X, Elías Sand-Hung – Adoración Merino-Arribas – Javier Martínez-Torres .................................................. 104
Unlocking Generation Y: Market Segmentation via Lifestyle Insights, Veronika Kopáčková – Kateřina Matušková …………………………………………………………… 122
The Media Framing of a Toxic Celebrity. How the Slovak Press Portrayed the Businessman Accused of Journalist’s Murder, Tereza Romická – Lucia Viošková – Peter Poledňák – Peter Kravčík .................................................. 140
Online Media Audience during the COVID-19 Pandemic as an Active Amplifier of Disinformation: Motivations of University Students to Share Information on Facebook, Helena Trajčová – Patrik Matuškaník – Martina Pavlíková – Katarína Stobišnová-Nováková .................................................. 154
The COVID-19 Pandemic and Its Influence on Slovak Media Professionals, Simona Tomkó – Slávko Čížák – Miroslav Kopec .................................................. 168
Survey of Consumer Behaviour in Selected International Catering Establishments in Czechia, Patrik Kajzar – Ladislav Mura …………………………………………………………… 196

REVIEWS

Country-of-Origin Effect in International Business: Strategic and Consumer Perspectives, Renata Čudaiová …………………………………………………………… 210
On Global Media Synergies: Merging Music, Television and Digital Games to Generate Profit, Mariá Dobiáškova …………………………………………………………… 212

TODAY

Horizon 2020 Project MEDIADELCOM: Assessing Media Risks and Opportunities, Júliana Mináriková …………………………………………………………… 214