

General Guidelines

- The footnotes are used solely for the broader discussion about the researched topic, remark by the authors, for stating an example, comparing the information with additional data, or to specify the time segment, specific part of the work.
- The first mention of a scientific term is written in italics, e.g., virtual reality. Further mentions are not in italics, however.
- Quoting marks are written as follows: “English.”
- Italics is used when naming monographs, academic journals, websites, textbooks, encyclopaedias, dictionaries, research reports, titles of films, television works, musical works, digital games. It is also used to emphasise algebraic symbols, e.g., Cohen’s d or a Likert scale (1 = strongly disagree to 5 = strongly agree). It is not used in case of film or book series (e.g., the Harry Potter series, the Hunger Games trilogy) or when mentioning media organisations and their abbreviations (Home Box Office, MTV, RTVS, Reuters).
- When using an abbreviation for the first time, e.g., The United States of America (USA), it is necessary to introduce the abbreviation like this. After that, only the abbreviation can be used.
- Each new paragraph in the text is tab-aligned to 1.25 cm.
- A single author should use exclusively the first-person singular to refer to their own actions and statements, e.g., Furthermore, I explain...
- Co-authored works use the first-person plural.
- The principle of (unknown) gender identity should be respected., e.g., The viewer expresses their (NOT ~~his/her~~) preferences by saying that... Please note: <https://apastyle.apa.org/blog/singular-they>
- Each source of information referenced in the text must be included in References; it is always listed only once. Each item listed must also appear in the body of the text. The exception is the situation when a private communication is identified as the source of the information, e.g., a discussion via e-mail that cannot be verified.
- If a reference included in the text refers to a work written by two authors, the names of the authors are given as follows: (Čábyová & Krajčovič, 2020). If three or more persons are involved, the model (Kusá et al., 2022) is used instead. The order in which individual persons are originally listed must be preserved.

- Long URLs (hyperlinks) can be given in shortened versions (created using so-called URL shorteners). URL shortening is possible, but not recommended unless the URL is long.

Quoting marks are further used:

- to emphasise a specific letter – e.g., the letter “A.”
- to replicate someone else’s words – I asked him, and he answered “yes.”
- to interpret research results – e.g., All involved students wrote “I agree with including my answers in this research inquiry” prior to participating. OR: The first question in the survey was “How often do you use social media?” Such a sentence is not followed by a full stop.
- to indicate ironic remarks, e.g., “normal” behaviour, “classy” production.
- to mention titles of scholarly studies, chapters in edited volumes or conference papers within the text (note that quoting marks which would emphasise the titles are not included in References). For example, in their study “Taboo topics in limited series offered by Internet-distributed television” (2023), Kvetanová and Radošinská conclude that...
- YET: In the publication From homo ludens to homo medialis: Cultural dimensions of game principles and media (Pravdová, 2022), the author mentions several... (titles of monographs and other publications are written in italics instead of “quoting marks.”)

Quoting and Paraphrasing

Quote shorter than 40 words

Kvetanová and Radošinská explain: “Today’s television dramas, specifically audio-visual products provided by Internet-distributed television, are fully adapted to the needs of the mainstream viewer” (2023, p. 82).

Quote longer than 40 words

In their study “Taboo topics in limited series offered by Internet-distributed television” (2023), Kvetanová and Radošinská conclude that contemporary television dramas involve prominent female characters associated with taboo topics.

Some of the most prominent taboo topics in today’s limited series are inherently associated with female characters and their struggles – such as a pragmatic middle-aged woman who is much more intelligent and efficient than fellow (male) policemen, a young girl facing mockery and irony while doing everything in her power to prove that she was raped, a young mother working as a house cleaner and building her future after she left her abusive partner, or teenaged girls and boys facing adversity while striving to define and establish their identities. Topics such as sexual violence, self-harm, suicide and mental and/or physical abuse are depicted quite often and explicitly. These stories merge the given topics with various expressions of racism, sexism and gun violence. Their ability to ‘mirror’ the complex realities of hypermodern society is therefore quite extraordinary. (Kvetanová & Radošinská, 2023, p. 83)

Paraphrasing chapters in edited volumes, articles, blogs, web pages with no specified authorship. Multiple items are separated by semi-colons.

Similar development tendencies are specified by multiple professional websites as well (see, for example, “Five Top Marketing Trends to Keep an Eye on in 2021”, 2021; “Ten Marketing Trends and Predictions for 2023”, 2023).

Specific Cases

Summarising a topic – referring to multiple items. The items are separated by semi-colons. Multiple works written by the same author are arranged chronologically, those published earlier are mentioned first.

This issue has recently been addressed by several authors (see, e.g., Pravdová, 2009; Pravdová, 2022; Radošinská et al., 2021).

Anonymous author (no specified authorship)

Multiple works published by the same author(s) or organisation(s) which are not dated

Private communications (e.g., e-mails, short text messages and chats, expert opinions, unrecorded conversations, telephone conversations, unrecorded university lectures or webinars, private correspondence) should be used minimally, only when necessary. Quoting digital sources, e.g., journalistic content available online – sections, paragraphs or their titles need to be specified.

Quote exceeding 40 words

The Oscar-winning actor Alan Arkin has passed away aged 89. The news that confirmed Arkin's passing was published on June 30, 2023, specifying his most critically acclaimed roles.

Arguably the most high-profile role of Arkin's early career came in 1970, when he was cast as Yossarian in the Mike Nichols-directed adaptation of Catch-22 – though that film was somewhat overshadowed by the similarly themed M*A*S*H*, released the same year. (Pulver, 2023, para. 3)

Quote shorter than 40 words

World Health Organisation claims: "It is important to note that concerns about the potential harmful effects of opioids are valid, such as their potential to lead to opioid use disorder" (World Health Organisation, 2023, "Reasons for the Disparity" section, para. 3).

References

- Hypertext references can be underlined.
- No academic titles are included.
- A missing/unspecified date is processed as follows: n.d. (no date).
- A date specifying when exactly content was accessed is only necessary if the content is permanently updated.
- Hypertext references are not followed by a full stop.
- DOI (Digital Object Identifier) is supposed to be included if it is available.
- Personal communications (mentioned in the text) are not included.
- Only a publishing house's name is specified, not the town/city where the company is located.
- If a reference originally starts with a number, e.g., 10 Marketing Trends and Predictions for 2023, it is re-written in References as follows: Ten Marketing Trends and Predictions for 2023.
- References are sorted alphabetically according to the surnames of the first authors. First names are not given, only their initials (including the initials of middle names). The function of the surname of the first author is also taken over by the names of organisations, e.g., World Health Organisation. Titles of publications without listed authors, e.g., of encyclopaedias are moved forward by the years of publication and arranged alphabetically, excluding possible definite and indefinite articles (in English A, An, The), which are not considered in the alphabetical arrangement.
- If a reference exceeds one line, all following lines are aligned through tabs (1.25 cm).
- Titles of publications and sources published in a language other than in English (e.g., sources written in Slovak used in an English-written paper) should not be translated.
- When specifying names of publishing houses, no forms of corporate structures should be indicated (e.g., Sage Publications Ltd.).
- When referring to dialogues, specific parts, segments of media products (films, music videos, podcasts, videocasts, TV broadcasts, streamed content, episodic audiovisual works or specific episodes, songs, videos shared via social media, etc.), a footnote reference should be created to determine the time segment. Example: In the film Dune (Villeneuve, 2021), the characters of Paul Atreides and his mother, Lady Jessica, discuss this matter multiple times.³

³ Note: The dialogues occur in the time frame 01:23:45 – 01:34:56.
